On November first a permanent exhibition of American productions will be opened in Rome, under the anspices of the Ministry of Agriculture, Industry and Commerce, and of the Consul General of the United States. A member of the Italian Parliament, according to the New York Herald, has recommended the farmers of Italy to look to the United States for their machines and implements, and it appears from the evidences of an industrial awakening in that country that the exhibition may be patronized by American manufacturers with prospects of substantial results. It probably results that the seclusive commercial policy which is being steadily extended and strengthened among the Germanic nations, partially including Russia, but more particularly the German and Austrian Empires, may be viewed as a siggestion to the Latin nations of a defensive policy which may inure favorably to an extension of commercial intercourse with a powerful commercial nation like the United States, disconnected from all European complications or special affiliations, and the Kelley unpleasantness may possibly be abundantly rectified by measures like this to cultivate with Italy more intimate relations through commercial intercourse.

River, Mich, and South Haven, Mich. Proposals have been invited for the construction of the necessary buildings.

RICHOND, VA, Aug. 25.—Right Rev. Bishop John J. Keane, of the diocese of Richmond, recently wrote a letter to A. M. Kelley In relation to what he terms the "shameful persecution" that gentleman is Paul, Minn, the bishop being at present in the far west conducting a series of spiritual retreats for the clergy. The bishop says: "I allude to the treatment indicate on you as an insuit not only to one of the most as an insuit not only to one of the most as an insuit not only to one of the most honored citizens of Virginia, but through him to all his fallow Catholics and follow citizens of this country and to the holy father himself. But in this insuit to who have offered it. It was an honor to be unwelcome by a government whose whole course has been been arked by injustice and irrelagion, and the government of Austria having by its recent act made itself the having the himself. But in the having the having the himself have been always to the displaced the attack made upon you by part of the daily press, still that need not concern us much, as nothing better was to be expected. "But I have regretted the attack made upon you by part of the daily press, still that need not concern us much, as nothing better was to be expected." "But I have expected the strictures. But it is a comfort to know that the utterances of these who live and the provide the attack made upon you by some Catholic scribblers who in their 2sol to appear clever and ultra-orthodox have overlooked the fact that the cause for which you were suffering was the who in their 2sol to appear clever and ultra-orthodox have overlooked the fact that the cause for which you were suffering was the whole you would be a non-depth to you for the persecution you have suffered for truth and justice's sake.
